The suit of Mrs. Sarah Alice Cunningham Murtagh against Mrs. Sophia M. Loebinger for money loaned, which came up for trial yesterday in the Ninth Municipal Court, was dismissed by Justice Jacob Marks without prejudice.

Mrs. Murtagh based her action on allegations that between May, 1909, and January, 1910, she had advanced to Mrs. Loebinger sums of money amounting to about $300 because of Mrs. Loebinger's representation that she was treasurer of the National Progressive Woman Suffrage Union and that the organization was duly incorporated. Mrs. Murtagh further alleged that she had loaned the money for the running expenses of a magazine called the American Suffragett, supposedly published by the union, but which called the American Surragett, supposedly published by the union, but which she was led to believe inter was a personal enterprise of Mrs. Loebinger.

David M. Newburger, attorney for Mrs. Loebinger, asked that the complaint be set aside on the ground that it did not show cause of action for fraud. It would be necessary, ht insisted, for Mrs. Murtagh to show that she had demanded the return of the money and that her demand had been refused before she had even a possible basis for action, and that no such allegation was contained in her complaint.

The Justice seemed to agree with Mr Newburger's view of the case, but gave Louis Oppenheimer, counsel for Mrs. Sultragh, several opportunities to amend the complaint. He tried eight times without succeeding in actisfying the Court, and then Mr. Newburger objected.

"Your Honor has shown him unusual legiency," he said, "more leniency than would have had the precocity to ask.

Mrs. Murtagh was attended by a dozen ex-suffragettee whom she had caused to be subpenaed as witnessee. Among these was E. L. Davis, Mrs. Loebinger did not appear in court.
